Teamwork for Tomorrow: Legal Strategies for Success

In challenging economic times, real estate and business professionals face numerous obstacles to success. These obstacles have been heightened by (i) industry consolidation, (ii) crisis management response times, (iii) the growth of class action litigation, and (iv) the economic downturn. In order to minimize and manage the risks associated with these trends, businesses must team with legal counsel to successfully navigate this landscape. Crafting effective strategies which blend the business and legal considerations to both avoid and escape liability are keys to success.

ALFA International is proud to present its Seventh Retail – Real Estate Practice Group Seminar, Teamwork for Tomorrow: Legal Strategies for Success. While continuing the focus of prior seminars, the Retail – Real Estate Practice Group is teaming with the Business Litigation Practice Group to provide an expanded forum in which representatives from business and their legal partners explore the central issues and recent trends which are currently presenting them with problems and exposures. The program will address both current and future challenges.

CRISIS MANAGEMENT

How do you plan for what should never occur and be able to react when it does? Crisis Management is vital to the protection of your corporate brand, but the responses must avoid inferences of potential liability. What are the threats, real or perceived? How fluid is the Company when it comes to addressing an emergency? What should counsel do to be a resource before, during, and after the event? These and other topics will be addressed in this panel presentation.
